I. MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of the Readington Public Schools Library Media Centers is to provide the resources and instruction necessary to help students engage in the essential skills involved in a guided inquiry process in which students acquire and share knowledge. Guided by the American Association of School Librarians' (AASL) National School Library Standards for Learners, School Librarians, and School Libraries, each Library Media Center strives to help students become proficient and ethical users of print and online resources in both academic and non-academic contexts. The K-8 grade information literacy curriculum is scaffolded to build on the curriculum from previous grades in order to bolster social awareness, encourage a lifelong love of reading, and facilitate the exploration of new knowledge through inquisitive learning and partnerships.

II. COMPONENTS OF AN EFFECTIVE LIBRARY MEDIA PROGRAM AND INFORMATION LITERACY CURRICULUM

A. The Library Media Specialist

A certified and experienced library media specialist ensures that students and teachers become effective consumers and creators of information. As stated by the AASL, "qualified school librarians perform interlinked, interdisciplinary, and cross-cutting roles as instructional leaders."

B. The Resources

a. Collection: A well-curated and up-to-date collection continuously evolves to meet the needs of the entire school population, including students and staff. The collection includes both print and online resources and is maintained by the library media specialist. AASL also states that "by providing access to an array of well-managed resources, school librarians enable academic knowledge to be linked to deeper personalized learning."

b. Technology: Technology is used as an instructional aid, research platform, and hands-on productivity tool. Both standard and emerging technologies and proper connectivity are present in order to maximize access and provide instruction. "An effective school library bridges digital and socioeconomic divides to affect information technology access and skill." (AASL)

C. The Instruction

The library media specialist focuses on activities and lessons that enhance student achievement, as well as collaborates with teachers to provide students with curriculum-based information literacy instruction. The program ensures that students become independent researchers and users of information through library resources and are able to transfer these skills into a real-world context, including career and college readiness.

D. The Space

The Library Media Center is a space that fosters creativity and collaboration and should be accessible to all patrons throughout the course of the school day. The Library Media Center is a school community space that incorporates both formal and informal areas for instruction and exploration.

III. STANDARDS ADDRESSED

AASL NATIONAL SCHOOL LIBRARY STANDARDS FOR LEARNERS, SCHOOL LIBRARIANS, AND SCHOOL LIBRARIES

The Information Literacy Curriculum is primarily guided by the American Association of School Librarians' National School Library Standards for Learners, School Librarians, and School Libraries. These standards incorporate six shared foundations: inquire, include, collaborate, curate, explore, and engage. These AASL standards are inclusive of the standards of Future Ready Librarians, as well as the International Society for Technology in Education (ISTE) Standards.

NEW JERSEY STUDENT LEARNING STANDARDS

In addition to the AASL standards, the Information Literacy Curriculum supports New Jersey Student Learning Standards across all grade levels and subject areas. Student achievement is higher when information literacy instruction is integrated with the subject-area curriculum. In addition to teaching library skills, library media specialists teach content area standards that entail information and media literacy as found in the Computer Science and Design Thinking Standards, as well as the Digital Citizenship and Informational and Media Literacy standards found in the Career Readiness Standards. These standards address the district’s digital citizenship, college and career readiness, and social-emotional learning objectives.

Key examples of standards addressed across all grades in instruction are included below:

New Jersey Student Learning Standards for English Language Arts

RL.K.1.: With prompting and support, ask and answer questions about key details in a text (e.g., who, what, where, when, why, how).

RL.K.2.: With prompting and support, retell familiar stories, including key details.

RL.1.3.: Describe characters, settings, and major event(s) in a story, using key details.

RL.2.10.: Read and comprehend literature, including stories and poetry, at grade level text complexity or above with scaffolding as needed.

RL.2.2.: Recount stories, including fables and folktales from diverse cultures, and determine their central message/theme, lesson, or moral.

W7.: Conduct short as well as more sustained research projects, utilizing an inquiry-based research process, based on focused questions, demonstrating understanding of the subject under investigation.

W8.: Gather relevant information from multiple print and digital sources, assess the credibility and accuracy of each source, and integrate the information while avoiding plagiarism.

W9.: Draw evidence from literary or informational texts to support analysis, reflection, and research.

SL5.: Make strategic use of digital media and visual displays of data to express information and enhance understanding of presentations.

New Jersey Student Learning Standards for Computer Science and Design Thinking

8.1.8.IC.1: Compare the trade-offs associated with computing technologies that affect an individual’s everyday activities and career options.

V. K-8 TOPIC SCOPE AND SEQUENCE

The definition of information literacy has become more complex as resources and technologies have changed. Information literacy has progressed from the simple definition of using reference resources to finding information. Multiple literacies, including digital, visual, textual, and technological, have now joined information literacy as crucial skills for this century. The Information Literacy curriculum is scaffolded over the course of the student's experience in the Readington Township Public Schools. The key topics for each grade level were chosen to further students' understanding of the NJSLs, ISTE Standards, and six shared foundations of inquire, include, collaborate, curate, explore, and engage.
